Unit Rationale:
This unit is designed to introduce preservice teachers to secondary classrooms (7-12) and to the core practices of teachers. It will introduce preservice teachers to the range of actions and activities required to be successful in teaching. When first preparing for teaching, preservice teachers are of necessity focussed upon their own actions through three core phases of teaching and learning; namely preparation, the learning episode and reflection. Throughout these phases preservice teachers need to participate in five key activities; praying, planning, organising, implementing and assessing. This unit introduces preservice teachers to the application of these five activities across the three identified phases of teaching and learning and provides them with an opportunity to embed these ideas in the context of a school-based professional experience block of four weeks within a secondary classroom context (7-12).

While all five of these teacher activities will be highlighted through the unit, specific attention will be given to the processes of planning within specific teaching areas. For preservice teachers to become successful in teaching for learning they require detailed assistance with developing learning experiences grounded in relevant curriculum documentation and then planning for that learning. This unit introduces them to the key types of planning that teachers are involved with at a classroom level; in particular lesson planning and the sequencing of learning experiences. This is done through explanations, demonstrations and experiences of planning models designed at CHC. At the same time, this planning is also embedded in the context of national and state-based curriculum documentation as a means of engaging preservice teachers with pedagogical content knowledge relevant to their specific teaching areas. These planning concepts and processes are then used as the basis for building deeper and broader expertise across all subsequent school-based professional experiences.

Following the professional experience block that is key to this unit, preservice teachers will be provided with opportunities to reflect upon their initial experiences in their ministry of teaching. This reflection will also provide links with the worldview studies undertaken in Christian Studies units. This application of worldview issues will contribute to preservice teachers’ initial understandings of what it means to be a ‘Christian teacher who teaches Christianly’.
Learning Outcomes:

On completion of this unit, preservice teachers will have provided evidence that they have:

1. Understood the purposes, functions, roles and responsibilities of schools and teachers in secondary contexts (7-12).
2. Linked secondary school and classroom experiences to salient theoretical perspectives from the literature.
3. Observed and reflected upon various aspects of teaching, learning, learning contexts and learners’ abilities, needs and interests as a basis for the processes of teaching and learning in secondary school contexts.
4. Planned, implemented and reviewed single mini and whole-class lessons in at least one of their specific teaching areas.
5. Developed appropriate connections between planning and relevant state and national syllabus documentation relating to both of their specific teaching areas and the relevant literacy and numeracy indicators.
6. Displayed the personal and professional qualities needed in the role of teacher; with a focus on teacher presence, initiative, inter-personal skills, and reliability.
7. Developed effective teaching skills and competencies to an appropriate beginning standard; with particular attention to communicating with secondary learners, questioning and responding to promote learning, organising and managing a secondary learning context, and variability.
8. Proposed personal perspectives on what it means to ‘teach Christianly’.
9. Considered their commitment to teaching and learning and their giftings and suitability for the ministry of teaching with a focus on the secondary years.
10. Written at an appropriate tertiary standard (with special attention to correct grammar, punctuation, spelling, vocabulary, usage, sentence structure, logical relations, style, referencing and presentation).

Professional Standards for Queensland Teachers:

The learning opportunities provided in this unit contribute to the development of the following Professional Standards for Queensland Teachers:
