Rationale	To be able to counsel children and adolescents effectively, counsellors not only need to understand child development, but specialised skills and interventions are also required to engage this particular age group. The aim of this unit is to introduce students to the multiple issues and dynamics involved in counselling children and adolescents, including cultural and Christian worldview values and principles. In particular, the differences between school counselling and private practice will be discussed, and the unique dynamics of working in the school environment explored. Emphasis will be placed on working collaboratively with other stakeholders to support the young person. Consideration will also be given to the vital area of child protection and the ethical and legal obligations of child and adolescent counsellors. With a well-considered appreciation of these contextual issues serving as a framework for intervention, students will also learn skills and age-appropriate therapeutic techniques for working with children and adolescents.
